Toxic

SUPPOSE A GROCER takes inventory of his store...

Buried in the bottom of his meat section he finds five packages of overripe hamburger. They have somehow sat there for two weeks, turning green.

What should the grocer do with this rotting meat? No one could argue the answer. He should get rid of it immediately! Furthermore, he should make certain that he never again neglects his meat section. He may have a beautiful store stocked with gorgeous produce, but rotten meat will spoil his business. Any customer who spots that greening goop will want to walk out of the store and never return.

It's the same with talk. Less than one percent of a person's word inventory can ruin the effect of all the rest. I've known people whose words could charm a snake out of its hole, people who are gracious in ninety-nine percent of what they say. But there is a toxic streak in their words that spoils the rest.

...Almost everybody can recall words that stung, words that crushed the spirit, words that left them feeling hopeless and desolate for days. How many people remember being told as children that they were stupid? How many people remember being (Continued)

TOXIC (cont.) told as adults that they were overweight? That it is their fault their children have problems?

It's amazing how often people remember having such words said to them, and yet how seldom people remember saying such words to others. We usually don't mean to hurt people. The words just pop out without our planning. We forget them. But those who hear them don't.

Sometimes words have to hurt. When you confront real problems, you must face painful realities. That's far different, however, from toxic talk. Toxic talk doesn't lead to dialogue--it stops it. Toxic talk is usually spoken in haste or in anger. The poison lingers on long after the emotions are gone.

The first task is to identify the toxic words in your speech and get rid of them. Tim Stafford, "Toxic Talk: Harsh Words and Lies," That's Not What I Meant!, 40-41

KneEmail: "A gentle answer turns away wrath, but a harsh word stirs up anger."

“Nationwide” Gospel Meeting broadcast by GBN June 27-July 2 from the 4800 seat Civic Center, 500 Garfield St, in McMinnville. Starts today at 7:00 P.M.

The Lamb and His Bride

The theme of this special series of Gospel Meetings will be to look at Jesus Christ as our sacrificial lamb and His church as the Bible describes it, His precious Bride. Story Title

From the stage of the McMinnville Civic Center, McMinnville, Tennessee, this six-evening event, a cooperative endeavor overseen by the Arlington church of Christ, will be telecast live by the Gospel Broadcasting Network on its cable outlets nationwide and on worldwide internet. It will also be aired on short wave radio and be local radio stations.

Those assembling at the Civic Center will be linked by satellite with audience around the country who gather around their televisions, and satellite receiver systems - in church buildings, prisons, assisted living facilities, nursing homes, and private homes, to share in these uplifting periods of worship, preaching, and praise to God.

Nightly Topics

"Her Creation" Sunday, June 27

Even before God created the world, He had already planned to create His bride, the church (Eph. 3:9-11). Did He fulfill His plan? If so, how, and when, did God bring the bride of Christ into existence? How important is it for us to know when the Lamb created His bride, the church? (B J Clarke, Memphis, TN, speaker)

"Her Glory" Mon, June 28

(Cliff Goodwin, Ironaton, AL, speaker)

"His Love" Tuesday, June 29, 7:00 PM

What has the Lamb of God done to show His love for the church, His holy bride? He "gave himself for it" (Eph. 5:25). What was the Lamb willing to give to purchase His bride, how does this gift still communicate His love to the church today, and how should the bride respond to His love? (B J Clarke)

"Her Unique Nature" Wednesday, June 30

(Cliff Goodwin)

"Their Relationship" Thursday, July 1,

(Kirk Brothers, Columbia, TN, speaker)

"Their Eternal Home" Friday, July 2.,

(Larry Acuff, Lithia, GA, speaker)

Songleaders:

Jeff Scott (Crieve Hall)

Sunday - Wednesday, June 27-30

Jeff Wilder (Fayetteville, GA)

Thursday - Friday, July 1-2
